

3. (Amended) A device in accordance with claim [2] 1, wherein the base plate has a lower surface; and wherein the plurality of apertures are formed at the lower end, and sized larger than a width of the lower surface, creating a plurality of protrusions extending from the base plate configured to penetrate the carpeted surface.